

EXHIBIT 2 - Page 27 of 32
UNSUPERVISED LEARNING OF OBJECT CATEGORIES FROM CLUTTERED IMAGES
Pietro Perona et al. -- 10/066,318
06618-776001

Attorney Docket:06618/776001/CIT3395

ABSTRACT

Unsupervised learning of object category from images is carried out by using an automatic image recognition system. A plurality of training images are automatically analyzed using an interest operator which produces an indication of features. Those features are clustered using a vector quantizer. The model is learned from the features using expectation maximization to assess a joint probability of which features are most relevant.